Stories and pictures

Outcome: Families with children 0-5 served by the Kings Beach Family Resource Center are raising healthy children.

A 31-year-old Caucasian mother first came to the Family Resource Center in 2002, to seek services and support for her newborn daughter who was born under-weight. She was connected to the Public Health Nurse and Early Head Start. She now provides day-care out of her home and for KBFRC. She also started her own business - BUG CAMP! She models appropriate behavior management, nutrition, and education for those in her natural network, and other KBFRC childcare providers.

Outcome: A Sustainability plan (including financial and social capital) will exist for the Kings Beach Family Resource Center.

A 21-year-old Latina woman, pregnant with her first child lives in Kings Beach with her husband. First came to KBFRC to connect a phone line for her new home. A family advocate engaged her in a case management plan. She now participates in FRC programs where she strengthens her network of friends and meets other young moms to talk with. She actively participates in educational activities like Health Month and School Readiness events. She was connected to the other woman in the photo, whose baby she now cares for.

Outcome: A sustainability plan (including social capital) will exist for the KBFRC

A 37-year-old Latina mother of four participates in case management with KBFRC. She shared with a family advocate that she has recently learned new skills and information for supporting her newborn. She teaches her new skills to family members, neighbors, and friends.

Outcome: Families with 0-5 children served by the Kings Beach Family Resource Center are raising healthy children.

An FRC Board approved sustainability plan will be created and implemented
